Dear Sir/Madam,

Re: Justin Letourneau

I am pleased to respond to a request from Justin Letourneau to provide a letter of reference reflecting his work experience and personal demeanor while he has been a Teaching Assistant in the Department of Political Science at Brock University.

Justin entered the Graduate program in Political Science in September 2009. While a student, and after graduating with his Master of Arts degree, Justin served as a Teaching Assistant for first and second year level courses including "Introduction to Political Science" and "International Relations." His current contract continues until April 2012.

In this capacity, Justin has been responsible for facilitating and evaluating seminar discussions for groups of twenty undergraduate students, grading essays and written exams, and responding to student requests for clarification of assigned materials.

Justin projects a high level of commitment to his students and has an enthusiastic leadership style. He provides an atmosphere which fosters respect between students from diverse backgrounds and which promotes the examination of relevant political issues at the national and international level. The evaluations completed by students at year end affirmed that Justin marked assignments fairly, was highly organized and was well-prepared for seminars.

From an administrative perspective, Justin requires little supervision, and meets department requirements and deadlines with ease. He has proven to be reliable and responsible, and is professional in every aspect.

It is without hesitation that I provide this letter.

Sincerely,

Diane Leon
